Nicknamed as the “Beast”, it truly is a deadly looking kukri, a beast like character that would mercilessly torn it’s prey into pieces in matter of seconds. One of the latest and strongest additions of KHHI into its amazing product line, this kukri is a pure work of art at its best. The knife is the hardest to craft done only by a very skilled craftsman as he has to work on the twin fuller/layers in the blade's panel that serves as the strength provider, shock absorber and is also designed to take out the unnecessary weight of the blade as in the "I-Beams" concept. The twin crescent like forging in this kukri unlike any others makes this knife so special as it adds beauty and beast like character to this knife. The twin-fuller combination gives heavy durability and endurance to the blade that is needed while performing heavy duty work and for using for a longer period of time. The curvatures/fullers will also give much needed support to the flat surface as it absorbs the direct impact felt by the edge of the blade dually. It is also a display of true craftsmanship as it is the hardest to craft. The blade is further only unpolished to better its cutting ability by retaining maximum tampering that might be lost during the finishing/polishing process and also to make it look traditional and attractive. The blade is 12 inches long (not too long or too short) for better coverage and better balance; an ideal size to maximize the output.

The handle of this kukri is another strong point perfectly executed to meet the demand of the heavy blade. The flat tang of the blade which can also be seen on the sides of the handle goes all the way through the handle and is fitted to the butt cap. The tang is further riveted to the handle to enhance the fixture. The khukuri comes with a normal leather scabbard but the tip is ignored so that it does not hurt a user when is carried in the waist. A lanyard hole is also fixed at the tip of the scabbard so that a string can be wrapped round thigh area for easier carrying.

Karda (small knife) and Chakmak (sharpener) are discarded to lessen the kukri's over all weight.

The "Beast and Beautiful" 3 Chirra, for hardcore kukri fanatic and user.

:: Please be notified that 3 Chirra comes with 3 x rivets in handle unlike as shown in the photo, done to reinforce the fixture)::

Water buffalo leather scabbard, twin metal rivets full flat tang Indian rosewood handle, twin fuller/layer, semi-polished blade, lanyard hole

The ever increasing popularity and demand of the “3 Chirra” version (3 x fullers forged in blade) encouraged KHHI into making a similar type but enhanced by modern useful features so a complete and dashing utility knife is achieved, hence the “3 Chirra Special (Guardian Angel)” was born. The kukri knife embraces all that is required to serve and deliver the ultimate satisfaction to any user giving a complete value of money, time and effort. Its an absolute work of art, showmanship of craftsmanship, a piece of machine, a peace of mind and a star of decors. 3 Chirra Special would indeed be the 1st and only choice for buyers who seek for an decisive kukri knife that cuts mercilessly, ensures safety, looks fearsome, is simply functional and most importantly delivers durability and guarantees.

10.5 inches blade with 3 x fullers makes the knife the ultimate chopper. Good length coverage that can take down a reasonable sized object. Fullers give good support to the blade and to the bevel/edge easing out the tension generated in the edge while striking against hard surface. The fullers also work as an “I Beam” to cut down some unnecessary weight of the blade making the knife easy to use and light to carry. It is also very hard to forge and to make in the wavy format that needs to be done by very skilled craftsman only. The shape of the blade is forged broad for weight within so that it does not shudder while striking.

A complete new protective cum comfortable handle is fitted in “3 Chirra Special (Guardian Angel)”. The handle is not only strong and durable but also provides much needed protection and firm grip (easy handling) needed for safe use. Its composition is full flat tang secured by epoxy and reinforced by multiple rivets from both sides. Unlike other kukri’s guard, here a “L” shaped guard is used which comes as an extra precautionary measure to ensure that the using hand always stays where it should. This different looking guard also adds uniqueness and lethal look to the kukri. The end portion/style of the handle is also an added feature of the knife where even a larger hand can get very comfortable and painless hold since poking problem like in the traditional handle is completely avoided. The lanyard cord can also be fixed through the see-through hole at the tail of the tang to tie the kukri around the user’s hand.

Black buffalo hide sheath is made for the kukri knife having a brown leather frog for carriage to suit the wooden handle of the 3 Chirra Special. A shoe lace is also tied at the top of the loop of the frog to tie the handle in order to prevent from wobbling and for easy carriage. White metal rounded tip is fitted in the tip of the sheath for an appealing look.

Why Guardian Angel??

In Nepal kukri knife is more than just a mere knife. It has significant religious, cultural and historic values and carries the country’s pride. It is regarded as a protector of the possessor physically and spiritually. There is a belief in Nepal that a kukri knife would scare away demons, evil spirits, enemies and adversaries and always safe guards its owner. With these myths and beliefs going strong as ever it may not be a bad idea for the “3 Chirra Special” to be entitled as “Guardian Angel” for the very reason mentioned above to possibly play a role in encouraging and stabilizing the mind and mission of the carrier at all times.

Jr. Shree 5 Chirra (Sherman)

Yet another outstanding addition to the Great Chirra (Fuller) family, the “Jr. Shree 5 Chirra”, as defined by its name is the smaller and shorter but improved version of the gigantic “Shree 5 Chirra \(General\)”. The kukri has also been bettered by adding vertical guard, finger resting curvatures and its handle fixture further strengthened by using the L-Key configuration.

The Chirra-walas khukuri knives have achieved remarkable heights on both crucial grounds –usage and demand. And hence keeping the very thing in mind Jr. Shree 5 Chirra (Sherman) was created by KHHI for those who prefer the popular chirra version in more practical size, more comfortable feel and more durability. The interesting and appealing title, “Sherman”, follows to denote the knife’s look and features of the legendary US made med size tank, the M4, later named as “Sherman” after the famous Union General William Tecumseh Sherman, that was a reliable and highly mobile workhorse that played a decisive role to win the WW2 for its masters.

Blade: Small but board that is easy to use (very functional) yet heavy enough to perform heavy jobs. The 5 x Chirra (fuller) in its blade is not only the demonstration of pure skill and expertise that makes the kukri look so beautiful but also supports the knife physically and technically by equally distributing the impact/pressure felt by the edge when slammed against a object. The shock felt by the edge is evenly distributed in a wavy form to all parts of the blade before it finally reaches the spine (stress cannot go straight to the spine). The blade thus does not rattle or tremor since the impact is minimized by the chirras/fullers. The chirras also cut down the unnecessary weight of the blade.

Guard: It is one very important character added that will always safe guard the user's hand so that injuries and wounds can be avoided. The guard works as a divider and always keeps the hand away from sharp edge of the blade. It comes even more useful in wet and slippery conditions and while stabbing.

Handle: Sherman's handle is another power-pact feature. Its wooden handle has the powerful L-Key configuration where nut-bolts are used instead of aluminum like in others to fix the wooden plates to the full flat tang. This makes the handle stronger and more durable. Imported epoxy is further used to reinforce the whole fixture. Similarly finger rest curvatures (grips) are crafted in the front side of the handle where each finger slides in comfortably providing a very easy, secure and sturdy grip the whole time. The handle blends in with the hand and gives a rock solid grip.

B-Up Knife: A 2.5 inch bladed supporting utility knife for small games and jobs - ones that may not be possible by the mother blade. An important inclusion that could come handy at anytime in any place.

It is a mini and modified version of the famous 3 Chirra (Beast) model. With the success story of the 3 Chirra (Three Fullers in blade) kukri spreading far and beyond KHHI is excited, encouraged and proposed to come with a smaller and improved model of it and thus as a result, Mini 3 Chirra (Champ) was created.

The blade has three fullers (Chirras) forged to show the unique craftsmanship and more importantly to withstand and support the impact/pressure felt by the blade while using/striking. The blade is highly polished to prevent from rusting and for easy maintenance. The traditional notch is removed to give a modern and distinct look. The handle on the other hand is totally unpolished to provide better non-slip sturdy grip. It is made from brown Indian rosewood and fixture adapted is the FFT riveted (Full Flat Tang) version. It means the material is the strongest and system used is the most secured one. The outcome thus would be a very long-term handle that would withstand years of hard use and abuse. The top portion of the metallic butt cap is fully rounded to prevent from pricking into the flesh when holding the knife. Green leather is used to produce the sheath to give a matching look and to perfectly suit the black horn handle. A lanyard loop is also fitted in the tip of the sheath to accommodate a leather thigh string.

Lastly, Champ is an all rounder all purpose utility and personal knife. Be it in your house or around, or out in woods or in the deep dense forest like that of the Amazon, or in the high heel of your motherland or in the flat rough terrain of the enemy's land, or to kill or save, or to cut or to hack, the Champ will surpass all challenges that it is made to face against.
